KOLOSZ - Specialized College of Transportation Engineering and Logistics - operates at the Széchenyi István University, in Győr, Hungary. Its members are working on several research projects - based on their own preferences -, in which they modellize and simulate the peculiarities of transportation and logistics. Their simulations - applying the learning by doing methodology - are widely used not only in educational, but in professional industrial environments.